By The United Press
High winds continued to lash the state today following a tempestuous day in which storms of tornado-like proportions swooped down on various parts of the state.

At Columbus two prisoners were killed when a tornado crumbled the walls of the city prison and two others are near death.

The twister whipped out of the sky with unexpected suddenness, caving in walls of a cell block housing more than 200 prisoners.

Those killed were Darrell Devore, 38, and Henry Washington, 47, a negro.

Only two of the injured were hurt seriously and both of them were near death today. They are Otto Malott 54, and Mike Morley, 37. Both suffered fractured skulls.

The section immediately surrounding the jail was the only one hit. Nearby buildings were unroofed and windows were blown in.

After striking the jail, the storm swirled into the skies and began disintegrating. It broke up completely as it passed east of the city.

CONGRESS DOES NOT FAVOR ENDING PORT PRIVILEGE RULING

Britten Defends Plan
Attacked By Grand Jury

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Congress is not disposed to end the freedom of the port privilege extended government officials when they return to the United States from official trips abroad, some members indicated today.

Rep. Fred A. Britten, Republican, Illinois, took the lead in opposing the recommendation of a New York grand jury investigating the case of Rep. Morgan, Republican, of Newark, O., that such courtesy should be abolished.

"Not one official in one thousand even thinks about violating the courtesy of freedom of the port which allows baggage to pass through customs officers without an examination," Britten said.

Rep. Morgan, who was accused of bringing liquor into the United States when given freedom of the New York port upon returning from a trip to Panama recently also believes the courtesy should continue.

"I recommend that all congressmen take as many trips as possible so as to see actual conditions in other countries," he said. "They should especially visit Panama. Such surveys are official business and the representatives' entry into the United States upon returning should be expedited," Morgan said.

Commenting on the New York grand jury's action in disposing of his case and its opinion that persons with the freedom of the port could bring in anything in their baggage without interference, Morgan said only repeat my previous declaration that there was no liquor in my baggage or in the baggage of any of my party when we returned from Panama.

LINDY'S WEDDING DATE DECIDED SOON

ENGLEWOOD, N. J., May 3.—A definite announcement regarding the date and place for the marriage of Miss Anne Morrow and Col. Charles Lindbergh probably will be made in the near future, it was believed today.

Miss Morrow returned to Englewood yesterday from Mexico City, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, and her sister, Elizabeth, the fiancée of the famous flyer, arrived from Cleveland and was successful in avoiding a large crowd which had gathered to greet her.

Lindbergh motored to the Morrow home later in the day. Mexico City reports have indicated that the marriage would be in Maine next month.

AFFIDAVIT AGAINST DRY AGENT DROPPED; PROBE IS CONTINUED

Father Of "Decoy"
Withdraws Charge
Due To Publicity

LANCASTER, O., May 3.—Luther Conrad of Amanda, who filed an affidavit here against State Dry Agent, Edward Little of Dayton, charging him with contributing to the delinquency of his daughter, Helen, 16, withdrew the affidavit today, thus automatically freeing Little, who was arrested in Dayton last night.

Little and State Dry Agent John C. Cole of Elyria were suspended from the state prohibition department Tuesday midnight after two Lancaster girls testified the officers used them as decoys in trapping bootleggers here.

The Conrad charge was filed later when it was revealed Little allegedly gave Conrad's eldest daughter, Mary, 22, a bottle of wine in the presence of her sister, Helen.

The specific charge was that Little, by passing the wine, "had tended to cause the delinquency of Helen."

It was said that Conrad withdrew the affidavit "because he was sick and tired of all the publicity" attendant upon the case.

The court received the withdrawal without comment, other than to say that Conrad in filing the affidavit reserved the right to withdraw the charge.

A statewide search had been under way for the dry agent since shortly after two eighteen-year-old Lancaster girls, Carrie Walton and Catherine Gunton, testified before U. S. Commissioner Horner, that they were used as decoys by Little and Cole.

No action has been taken against Cole who was reported to have arrived here during the night for a conference with Sam Beetham who is acting as prohibition commissioner in the absence of his father, Rupert K. Beetham who is expected to return from the south tomorrow.

Prosecutor Cunningham said he has evidence that Little and Cole were known to at least nine Lancaster girls who attended parties where liquor allegedly was supplied by the dry agents.

Both Cole and Little have issued denials, each claiming that Mrs. Curtis screamed and fainted.

E. H. Christmas, a neighbor, drawn by the woman's cries, pursued the intruder but lost him in the darkness.

FORMER SECRETARY OF TREASURY GLASS SAYS HE HELD STOCK

Believes Others Also Retained Stock During Terms

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The off-stage congressional debate over Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's stock holdings as a bar to his cabinet post because of his vast stock interests in the Aluminum Company of America and other corporations.

Glass said he knew his two predecessors, William G. McAdoo and Houston, were stock owners. Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of treasury, is known to have owned stock in a New York bank, and Secretary Manning in the Cleveland administration had large stock holdings.

"Of course I owned stock," Glass said when he was requested for a statement. "Why I was the largest individual stockholder in an industry in my state but I did give up my bank stock which wasn't hard to do because I had so little."

The particular point now being discussed is whether the committee should call Mellon to clear up his testimony given in a civil suit in 1925, indicating he was in direct touch with policies of Aluminum Company.

While the Mellon matter was being fought out in committee, the senate is discussing the Watson amendment to the farm bill, proposing to strike out the debenture clause. Chairman McNary of the senate agriculture committee in charge of the bill expects to get a vote before night, if possible, but many senators yet remain to be heard. As soon as the debate matter is out of the way an early vote on the bill is expected. McNary wants a final vote Saturday.

The house was holding a brief session to enable several representatives to make speeches. It is marking time until the tariff bill comes out of the ways and means committee.

MOTHER HAS CHANCE TO RECOVER; SORRY SHE COMMITTED ACT

Physicians Certain That Woman Who Slew Babe
Mentally Ill.

Mrs. Margaret Hotopp, 30, Byron, whom authorities say drowned her six-weeks-old son, Edward, Wednesday, then attempted suicide, remained in a serious condition at Espey Hospital Friday, but physicians now think she has a chance to recover.

The mother is suffering from a .22 caliber bullet wound above the heart, which she inflicted with her husband's rifle after failing three other times to end her life.

Coroner F. M. Chambliss and Dr. Paul Espey, head of the hospital, after questioning Mrs. Hotopp Thursday, pronounced her entirely irresponsible for the deed.

She is said to have been a victim of melancholia that began before the birth of her baby March 19 and which assumed the form of belief that she had contracted tuberculosis and could not recover. Dr. Espey said she is suffering from acute mental disorder following child-birth.

Her husband, Henry, gave a different version of the drowning and attempted suicide, explaining that when he returned to his farm at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday, he discovered his wife attempting to take her life by submerging her body in a watering trough on the barn lot.

He said he rescued her from the trough and carried her forcibly away. Twice after that she eluded him and tried to drown herself in the watering trough but each time her husband dragged her away and finally carried her into the house, where he locked the doors.

Hotopp called Charles Fierstone, who was working in a nearby field, and ran to a neighbor's home to telephone a doctor. Meanwhile Mrs. Hotopp seized a rifle that was in the room and shot herself, the bullet passing completely through the body, penetrating a lung.

Hotopp explained that the idea of an incurable disease had become an obsession with his wife and that she had been acting "queerly" ever since the birth of her baby.

"I am sorry," she told her husband at the hospital, "but I thought I was not going to get well."

Her husband believes that she thought she would be a burden to her family, although actually she was physically fit.

The Hotopp family has another child, a six-year-old girl who was attending school at the time of the tragedy.

Coroner F. M. Chambliss said he would withhold an inquest pending the outcome of the mother's wounds.

POLICE BREAK UP BERLIN RIOTING

The Neukolln and north end districts, where the worst of the rioting occurred, were sequestered. Police encountered no resistance as they cleared the streets of barricades and began systematically raiding houses. Seventy arrests were made.

HOOVER HELPS WHEAT FARMERS; EASTERN RAIL LINES CUT RATES

WASHINGTON, May 3.—President Hoover has moved far toward alleviating the existing acute distress of middle western wheat producers who find themselves with huge quantities of grain in storage and another bumper crop coming on in a few months.

Following a series of conferences extending over a period of three weeks, initiated by the chief executive, the eastern trunk line railroads have reduced freight rates on wheat shipment from Buffalo to the Atlantic seaboard by two cents a bushel.

A few days ago the Kansas City Southern System announced a reduction of seven cents a hundred pounds on export wheat consignments to the gulf ports.

Both reductions are calculated to stimulate exports of the present carry-over of 250,000,000 bushels of wheat by placing American exporters in more favorable competitive positions in the Liverpool markets.

The present situation would be greatly aggravated by the harvesting in July of the anticipated 900,000,000 bushel crop should the present carry-over stock still remain in the storage bins throughout the west. Storage capacity is already well filled.

THREE HURT AS BOMB EXPLODES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 3.—Three men were seriously injured here last night when a bomb burst in the center of the downtown district.

The two-story building was badly damaged by the blast and windows in surrounding buildings were broken.

Police blamed a political feud for the bombing.

TORTURE CULT IS FOUND

LOS ANGELES, May 3.—Queen Isis, asserted woman cult leader, was hunted by police today after they had raided a luxuriously furnished apartment in the Wilshire district and surprised eight alleged flagellants as they were inflicting horrible ritual punishments upon themselves.

Those arrested were men, but police said they had information that a woman known as Queen Isis was head of the cult.

Raiding officers said they found the occupants lashing themselves with hand fashioned whips to the accompaniment of moans. They said one man was torturing himself by allowing water to drip from a suspended canteen and strike him monotonously until he became frenzied.

"We found evidence of self hypnosis and it was plain that several members were well versed in the 'dark arts,'" Captain R. E. Steckel said.

SOUTH YIELDS DEAD AFTER WIND STORMS WREAK MORE HAVOC

Fifteen Killed As Virginia School Is Demolished

FIVE STATES HIT

Great Lakes States Swept By Snow After Winds

ATLANTA, Ga., May 3.—The south today looked upon death and wreckage left in the wake of devastating winds which swept through sections of five southern states east of the Mississippi River, levying a heavy toll in lives and property damage.

Only today did the full destructive extent of the winds of yesterday, which in some sections became roaring tornadoes, begin to be unfolded.

Sympathetic interest turned particularly toward the little consolidated school at Rye Cove, Va., where fifteen young lives were snuffed out when the building was demolished by a tornado yesterday afternoon. More than 100 children were injured and seven were missing.

Some of those who yet live will die, physicians said.

Another storm center was Woodville, Va., where a school boy was killed and a dozen other persons, including teachers and several children were injured when extremely high winds razed a school house, two churches, and four homes.

Oak, Ala., reported one death and several seriously injured by another wind of cyclonic proportions, and a youth was killed and his companion seriously injured by a falling tree uprooted by high winds at Lafayette, Ga.

The death list in Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Florida stood at twenty, while the injured were placed at upward of 150. Property damage was extensive.

The Rye Cove catastrophe came shortly before one o'clock when 125 students and teachers were in the two story frame building. Of this number, few, if any, escaped death or injury.

The eight room school was attended by children from a radius of ten miles around in the picturesque mountain valley. The students ranged from kindergarten age to high school seniors. The building, struck with sudden and shattering force, collapsed as the roof was torn away.

The children were trapped in the wreckage, some being killed outright. Others were pinned helplessly under heavy timbers, unable to move, their groans and screams rising above the storm were heart rending.

Alva Carter, high school teacher and fourteen children were killed. Probably six others will die, physicians said. Tots seven years old to high school seniors of eighteen were among the dead.

POLITICAL POLICY IS BEFORE LEAGUE

COLUMBUS, O., May 3.—A resolution defining a political policy with respect to the league of officials, came before the tenth annual convention of the Ohio League of Women Voters here today.

Heretofore, Miss Agnes Hilton, of Cincinnati, state president, explained, league officers, whenever they wanted to participate in a partisan political campaign, have resigned office, returning to the office after the campaign.

Since the league is strictly non-partisan it may be determined whether this practice will be continued, or abolished as unethical.

A proposal to change the time of the state convention from May to October also was before the convention.

More than 150 members attended the annual convention banquet last night at which Governor Myers, Y. Cooper, State Welfare Director Hal H. Griswold and Dr. Charles A. Neal, director of the state department of health, spoke briefly.

The convention ends late today with a tea at the state executive mansion.

FREIGHTER AGROUND

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 3.—Five coast guard cutters were ordered out today to the assistance of the freighter, D. N. Philbin, grounded on the rocks in Lake Erie, twelve miles south of Ashtabula, Ohio. The vessel, carrying 9,500 tons of iron ore from Duluth to Conneaut, O., was reported as slowly tilting with water and her crew in danger.

FORMER SECRETARY OF TREASURY GLASS SAYS HE HELD STOCK

Believes Others Also Retained Stock During Terms

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The offstage congressional debate over Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's stock holdings as a bar to office was whetted today with a statement from Senator Carter Glass, Virginia, Democrat and treasury secretary under President Wilson, who said he had stock holdings and thought nearly every other secretary in history owned stock while in office.

Glass' statement came while the judiciary committee was holding its sixth day session, arguing over the pending Norris report which holds Mellon is ineligible to continue in his cabinet post because of his vast stock interests in the Aluminum Company of America and other corporations.

Glass said he knew his two predecessors, William G. McAdoo and Houston, were stock owners. Alexander Hamilton, first secretary of treasury, is known to have owned stock in a New York bank, and Secretary Manning in the Cleveland administration had large stock holdings.

POLICE BREAK UP BERLIN RIOTING

BERLIN, May 3.—An army of police was mobilized today and marched into the areas where the rioting of the last two days continued, searching houses, seizing quantities of arms and ammunition and making many arrests.

The district was surrounded and no one was allowed to leave. It was officially announced that the rioting had ended early today, when one killed and thirteen wounded, making a total of eleven dead and 173 wounded, since the rioting began.

The Neuukoella and north end districts, where the worst of the rioting occurred, were sequestered. Police encountered no resistance as they cleared the streets of barricades and began systematically raiding houses. Seventy arrests were made.

WOOSTER STUDENT OBJECT OF SEARCH

WOOSTER, O., May 3.—Authorities of Wooster College today continued efforts to locate Marvin Rife, 17, college sophomore, who has been missing from here since last Friday.

He has been traced to Pittsburgh where he spent the week end visiting a girl friend. He is reported to have left there Saturday afternoon with the intention of taking a bus back to Wooster.

Rife's father, S. E. Rife, is a clerk in the Marion postoffice. He and his wife have come to Wooster to aid in the search.

TUG HITS ROCKS

NEW YORK, May 3.—The United States navy tug Ruha No. 37, with sixty men aboard, went on the rocks near Fort Lafayette today, police reported. A police launch was standing by. Fort Lafayette is in the narrows near the Fort Hamilton section of Brooklyn.

AUTO KILLS WOMAN

COLUMBUS, May 3.—The body of an unidentified white woman who was killed south of here last night when she was struck by an automobile, was held in the city morgue here today pending identification.

The woman was about fifty years old.

SERVED AS DECOY FOR DRY AGENT

Miss Catherine Gunion, 18, of Lancaster, O., is one of four or five high school girls whose testimony may be used in the prosecution of Edward Little and John Cole, suspended Ohio state prohibition agents, who are said to have used the girls to entrap suspects into selling liquor. Miss Gunion and Miss Carrie Walton have testified that they were taken on an auto ride by the agents, and given wine to drink.

HOOVER HELPS WHEAT FARMERS; EASTERN RAIL LINES CUT RATES

WASHINGTON, May 3.—President Hoover has moved far toward alleviating the existing acute distress of middle western wheat producers who find themselves with huge quantities of grain in storage and another bumper crop coming on in a few months.

Following a series of conferences extending over a period of three weeks, initiated by the chief executive, the eastern trunk line railroads have reduced freight rates on wheat shipment from Buffalo to the Atlantic seaboard by two cents a bushel.

A few days ago the Kansas City Southern System announced a reduction of seven cents a hundred pounds on export wheat consignments to the gulf ports.

Both reductions are calculated to stimulate exports of the present carry-over of 250,000,000 bushels of wheat by placing American exporters in more favorable competitive positions in the Liverpool markets.

The present situation would be greatly aggravated by the harvesting in July of the anticipated 900,000,000 bushel crop should the present carry-over stock still remain in the storage bins throughout the west. Storage capacity is already well filled.

THREE HURT AS BOMB EXPLODES

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 3.—Three men were seriously injured here last night when a bomb burst in the center of the downtown district.

The bomb was believed to have been hurled from a passing automobile. Several other persons in the place when the explosion occurred escaped injury.

The two-story building was badly damaged by the blast and windows in surrounding buildings were broken. Police blamed a political feud for the bombing.

TORTURE CULT IS FOUND

LOS ANGELES, May 3.—Queen Isis, asserted woman cult leader, was hunted by police today after they had raided a luxuriously furnished apartment in the Wilshire district and surprised eight alleged flagellants as they were inflicting horrible ritual punishments upon themselves.

Those arrested were men, but police said they had information that a woman known as Queen Isis was head of the cult.

Raiding officers said they found the occupants lashing themselves with hand fashioned whips to the accompaniment of moans. They said one man was torturing himself by allowing water to drip from a suspended canteen and strike him monotonously until he became frenzied.

"We found evidence of self hypnosis and it was plain that several members were well versed in the 'dark arts'," Captain R. E. Steckel said.

SOUTH YIELDS DEAD AFTER WIND STORMS WREAK MORE HAVOC

Fifteen Killed As Virginia School Is Demolished

FIVE STATES HIT
Great Lakes States Swept By Snow After Winds

ATLANTA, Ga., May 3.—The south today looked upon death and wreckage left in the wake of devastating winds which swept through sections of five southern states east of the Mississippi River, levying a heavy toll in lives and property damage.

Only today did the full destructive extent of the winds of yesterday, which in some sections became roaring tornadoes, begin to be unfolded.

Sympathetic interest turned particularly toward the little consolidated school at Rye Cove, Va., where fifteen young lives were snuffed out when the building was demolished by a tornado yesterday afternoon. More than 100 children were injured and seven were missing.

Some of those who yet live will die, physicians said.

Another storm center was Woodville, Va., where a school boy was killed and a dozen other persons, including teachers and several children were injured when extremely high winds razed a school house, two churches, and four homes.

Oak, Ala., reported one death and several seriously injured by another wind of cyclonic proportions, and a youth was killed and his companion seriously injured by a falling tree uprooted by high winds at Lafayette, Ga.

The death list in Virginia, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Florida stood at twenty, while the injured were placed at upward of 150. Property damage was extensive.

The Rye Cove catastrophe came shortly before one o'clock when 125 students and teachers were in the two story frame building. Of this number, few, if any, escaped death or injury of some sort.

The eight room school was attended by children from a radius of ten miles around in the picturesque mountain valley. The students ranged from kindergarten age to high school seniors. The building, struck with sudden and shattering force, collapsed as the roof was torn away.

The children were trapped in the wreckage, some being killed outright. Others were pinned helplessly under heavy timbers, unable to move, their groans and screams rising above the storm were heard for miles.

Alva Carter, high school teacher and fourteen children were killed. Probably six others will die, physicians said. Tots seven years old to high school seniors of eighteen were among the dead.

CHICAGO, May 3.—Frigid gales which lashed destructive lake water over shores of the Great Lakes today.

POLITICAL POLICY IS BEFORE LEAGUE

COLUMBUS, O., May 3.—A resolution defining a political policy with respect to the league's officials, came before the tenth annual convention of the Ohio League of Women Voters here today.

Heretofore, Miss Agnes Hilton, of Cincinnati, state president, explained, league officers, whenever they wanted to participate in a partisan political campaign, have resigned office, returning to the office after the campaign.

Since the league is strictly non-partisan, it may be determined whether this practice will be continued, or abolished as unethical.

A proposal to change the time of the state convention from May to October also was before the convention.

More than 150 members attended the annual convention banquet last night at which Governor Myers V. Cooper, State Welfare Director Hal H. Griswold and Dr. Charles A. Neal, director of the state department of health, spoke briefly. The convention ends late today with a tea at the state executive mansion.

FREIGHTER AGROUND

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 3.—Five coast guard cutters were ordered out today to the assistance of the freighter, D. N. Philbin, grounded miles south of Ashtabula, Ohio. The vessel, carrying 9,500 tons of iron ore from Duluth to Conneaut, O., was reported as slowly filling with water and her crew in danger.

READ THIS FIRST:

The plot concerns some weird noises, beneath a supposedly haunted house in Byford Moor. One day, Brown, a romantic young clerk, heard a rough-looking fellow say to another: "After her! And if she's troublesome—don't be particular what you do to her!" Brown trails the girl to the haunted house and disappears. Rupert and Charlie, Brown's companions, meet the girl at the village inn. She tries to persuade them to leave. She says Brown has gone home. Rupert does not believe her story, and determines to solve the mystery of the house, and why the girl is there.

"But why do you want us to go home, too?" asked Rupert.
"Isn't that rather a funny question?" she returned. "There's no need for you to stay."
"Probably not. But suppose we do stay?"
"That would be foolish."
"I don't know. We're on a walking tour, and might like to potter around here as well as anywhere else."
A shadow came into her face. She did not answer for a few seconds. Then she said, with a little shrug:
"Of course, you and your friend must do as you like. I've no right to dictate to you. But I'd prefer you to stay."

"Why?"

"Because I hope to get a good story out of this, and while I am here I don't want to attract attention to this place. Someone else may come along and 'kill' my story with one of his own." She looked at him impatiently. "Don't you see, that the more people there are around, the greater will be the attention attracted to this place? This means a lot to me. Surely, it's only a small favor I'm asking?"

Rupert began to hate his position. Perhaps it was a small favor to ask. But the reason for the favor, and the urgency of it, seemed terribly inadequate.

"Miss Marlowe," he said, after a pause, "you mustn't think me unkind, or impertinent. If we hadn't wanted to help you, we would never have set out on this chase. But I think you'll admit I have a little reason for my hesitation, and my curiosity. There are several points your explanation doesn't cover."

"And, of course, I am bound to explain them to you," she asked, with again that tantalizing hint of irony.

"No, you're not bound to do anything of the sort. You said just now you couldn't dictate to me. It's equally true I can't dictate to you. But I'm going to ask you some questions, just the same, and I hope you'll answer them. If you are simply a journalist seeking followers, why should that chap have followed you from King's Cross?"

"He didn't follow me," she retorted. "Mr. Brown made a mistake from the start."

Rupert frowned. "Do you know anything about him, then? Have you any idea who he was following?"

"How should I know? I've tried to work it out. He may have thought I was somebody else, and then have found out my mistake. I left the compartment shortly after the unpleasant incident at the door, so I can't say what happened then. But isn't it possible that the somebody else he mistook me for may have been on the train—in another part—and that they met before the train reached Newcastle?"

"And the man in the check suit got the worst of it?"

"Well—you say he was drugged."

"I see. And your blood-stained handkerchief?"

"I cut my wrist opening a bottle of lemonade," she answered. "The bottle broke. I used the handkerchief to stop the bleeding."

She held her right wrist out to him, and showed him the mark. "Does that satisfy you?"

"By Jove! That must have hurt!" he exclaimed.

"It did. And the next?"

"You hid at Newcastle."

"Really, Mr. Blake—"

"I beg your pardon," he interposed, quickly. "Perhaps I was wrong there."

"Perhaps you've been wrong in a good many other places, too," she suggested.

"But with only one intention, remember," he returned, looking at her fully. "With the intention of helping you. And it's with the same intention, Miss Marlowe, that I ask you to give up your investigations of Coomber House, and to cut it out of your series."

"I am not going to disappoint my editor," she frowned.

"Well, if you want to give him something genuinely arresting and spicy," he retorted, "you might mention that a dead body was seen in Coomber House last night, and that this morning it had disappeared."

"Ah! He had startled her this time! A look of consternation spread over her face, and she stared at him for a moment without speaking. Then, quickly regaining herself, she exclaimed:

"Who saw it?"

"A fellow out of work, who slept in the shed."

"And who possibly dreamt in the shed," she retorted, swiftly. "If that body was there last night, why didn't I come across it? And why didn't Mr. Brown? And why isn't it there this morning?"

A sudden smile chased away her consternation. "Why, Mr. Blake—perhaps Coomber House is haunted really—after all!"

Rupert watched her closely, and shook his head.

"Whether it's haunted, or whether it's not," he said, quietly, "it is not a safe place to investigate."

"Yes, Miss Marlowe, I'll go away from Byford Moor on one condition."

"What is it?"

"That you go away, too."

She rose, angrily.

"We're wasting each other's time," she said, shortly. "Good morning."

"Good morning, Miss Marlowe," he responded, as he rose, also. "If you're not a quitter—well, nor am I."

He watched her disappear across the lawn. And when she had vanished, he swore gently and softly to himself. For Rupert Blake was in the unenviable position of being head over heels in love with a girl who, in ten minutes, had told him more lies than he usually heard in ten months.

The movements of Mr. Simon Brill on this very sunny morning at Byford Moor were of considerable interest, and led Charlie Car-fax, whose mission it was to study those movements, into an entirely new phase of the adventure—a phase which enlarged its horizon and provided a fresh zest. In fact, the perspiring Charlie, whom Nature had designed for gentle behavior on broiling days, performed deeds as astonishingly stout as himself ere he was destined to return to the Yellow Stag.

But before we review these movements and these deeds, we must review others, which occurred some thirty miles away, in a dingy, unromantic office in Newcastle.

The office was the office of Messrs. Spriggs and Spriggs, house agents, of 43-B South Barton Street. One of the Spriggs was dead, and the other was not far off it; but this auspicious arrangement did not appear to have improved the prospects of a junior clerk whose duty it was to sift the meal from the chaff as one or the other entered through a creaking swing door for his inspection. The meal was passed on to a senior clerk, and possibly (if it was after eleven o'clock) on to the just surviving Spriggs. The chaff was dealt with by the junior clerk himself.

It was undoubtedly chaff that entered through the creaking swing door just as the junior clerk was wondering, while he stared at a ruined piece of blotting paper, where you put an elephant's tusks. Did they go above or below the trunk? The point was important, and it was annoying to be disturbed before a decision had been reached. For this reason the human chaff did not receive the most gracious of welcomes.

But perhaps the incomplete elephant was not entirely to blame for the junior clerk's attitude. The visitor was not the sort of man to command instinctive service. No, not even from junior clerks whose greatest qualifications were drawing elephants on blotting paper. He was rather small, and rather plain. His suit was rather worn, and his hat was rather old. In fact, there was nothing superlative about him—superlatively right or superlatively wrong—saving his reddish moustache. And that was superlatively wrong.

"Good morning," began the visitor.

"Good mornin'," replied the junior clerk. His expression, if not his lips, added: "What do you want?"

"Could I see someone?" asked the visitor.

This remark did not improve matters. We all, even the most modest of us, consider we are someone. The junior clerk studied the visitor for a second, decided that he did not bite, and risked

"Yes, Coomber House," agreed the visitor. "Byford Moor."

This was more interesting. The junior clerk began to take notice. "D'you want to take it?" he inquired, in gentle amazement.

He wouldn't have taken Coomber House himself, but that wasn't the point. The point was that this client looked more like No. 1-A, Kittens Meow.

"No, caretaker's job," said the visitor. "I'm after that."

"Oh! Caretaker," muttered the junior clerk. And, all at once, stared at the visitor rather hard. "Got a note, or something?"

"Yes," answered the visitor. "Well, let's see it."

The visitor hesitated, then inquired:

"Are you Mr. Spriggs?"

her fully. "With the intention of helping you. And it's with the same intention, Miss Marlowe, that I ask you to give up your investigations of Coomber House, and to cut it out of your series."

"I am not going to disappoint my editor," she frowned.
"Well, if you want to give him something genuinely arresting and spicy," he retorted, "you might mention that a dead body was seen in Coomber House last night, and that this morning it had disappeared."

Ah! He had startled her this time! A look of consternation spread over her face, and she stared at him for a moment without speaking. Then, quickly regaining herself, she exclaimed:
"Who saw it?"

"A fellow out of work, who slept in the shed."

"And who possibly dreamt in the shed," she retorted, swiftly. "If that body was there last night, why didn't I come across it? And why didn't Mr. Brown? And why isn't it there this morning?" A sudden smile chased away her consternation.

"Why, Mr. Blake—perhaps Coomber House is haunted really—after all!"

Rupert watched her closely, and shook his head.

"Whether it's haunted, or whether it's not," he said, quietly, "it is not a safe place to investigate."

Yes, Miss Marlowe, I'll go away from Byford Moor on one condition.

"What is it?"

"That you go away, too."

She rose, angrily.

"We're wasting each other's time," she said, shortly. "Good morning!"

"Good morning, Miss Marlowe," he responded, as he rose, also. "If you're not a quitter—well, nor am I."

He watched her disappear across the lawn. And when she had vanished, he swore gently and softly to himself. For Rupert Blake was in the unenviable position of being head over heels in love with a girl who, in ten minutes, had told him more lies than he usually heard in ten months.

The movements of Mr. Simon Brill on this very sunny morning at Byford Moor were of considerable interest, and led Charlie Car-

fax, whose mission it was to study those movements, into an entirely new phase of the adventure—a phase which enlarged its horizon and provided a fresh zest. In fact, the perspiring Charlie, whom Nature had designed for gentle behavior on broiling days, performed deeds as astonishingly stout as himself ere he was destined to return to the Yellow Stag.

But before we review these movements and these deeds, we must review others, which occurred some thirty miles away, in a dingy, unromantic office in New-castle.

The office was the office of Messrs. Spriggs and Spriggs, house agents, of 43-B South Barton Street. One of the Spriggs was dead, and the other was not far off it; but this auspicious arrangement did not appear to have improved the prospects of a junior clerk whose duty it was to sift the meal from the chaff as one or the other entered through a creaking swinging door for his inspection. The meal was passed on to a senior clerk, and possibly (if it was after eleven o'clock) on to the just surviving Spriggs. The chaff was dealt with by the junior clerk himself.

It was undoubtedly chaff that entered through the creaking swinging door just as the junior clerk was wondering, while he stared at a ruined piece of blotting paper, where you put an elephant's tusks. Did they go above or below the trunk? The point was important, and it was annoying to be disturbed before a decision had been reached. For this reason the human chaff did not receive the most gracious of welcomes.

But perhaps the incomplete elephant was not entirely to blame for the junior clerk's attitude. The visitor was not the sort of man to command instinctive service. No, not even from junior clerks whose greatest qualifications were drawing elephants on blotting paper. He was rather small, and rather plain. His suit was rather worn, and his hat was rather old. In fact, there was nothing superlative about him—superlatively right or superlatively wrong—saving his reddish moustache. And that was superlatively wrong.

"Good morning," began the visitor.

"Good morning," replied the junior clerk. His expression, if not his lips, added: "What do you want?"

"Could I see someone?" asked the visitor.

This remark did not improve matters. We all, even the most modest of us, consider we are someone. The junior clerk studied the visitor for a second, decided that he did not bite, and risked obedience to his outraged impulse. "Well, aren't you seen" someone?" he demanded. "Think I'm a canary?"

He wished immediately afterwards that he had said "giraffe" or "ichthyosaurus." He had a loathing towards big animals. But you can't retract.

"I beg your pardon," said the visitor, proving that he did not bite. "I've come about Coomber House."

The problem of keeping up one's dignity became less acute.

"Coomber Ouse," repeated the junior clerk.

"Yes, Coomber House," agreed the visitor. "Byford Moor."

This was more interesting. The junior clerk began to take notice.

"Do you want to take it?" he inquired, in gentle amazement.

"What do you want?"

XENIA FEELS STORM EFFECT; SNOW HERE ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Thursday carried off honors for record-breaking weather with the mixture of high wind, rain and snow of Thursday night.

Xenians shivered over their cereal and cream Friday morning in the hardy cheerful temperature of thirty-five degrees, but at that the temperature was a considerable improvement over the preceding evening.

Starting between 9 and 10 p. m. Thursday, wind whipped a mixture of rain and snow into stinging particles, blinding pedestrians and drivers of vehicles.

The prevailing if not popular temperature Friday morning was between 40 and 50 degrees, but under the warming influence of the sun the weather was improving from the standpoint of comfort.

Thursday's rain may have been good for the flowers but it played havoc with the sunshine.

No damage was reported over the county as a result of the storm.

M'DILL INJURED

CONVICTIONS UNDER LIQUOR LAW UPHELD BY APPEALS COURT

H. F. Glover, proprietor of a hotel at Jamestown, and C. O. Hargrave, Jamestown-Cedarville Pike, must each pay fines of $200 and costs imposed in July 1928, the Greene County Court of Appeals ruled Thursday in sustaining their convictions in Probate Court on charges of selling liquor.

The argument advanced in the appeal of the defendants was to the effect that there is no corroborating evidence of the testimony of the man to whom it is claimed the liquor was sold and the facts essential to their conviction.

The appellate court pointed out, however, that while this claim is substantially correct, "it is not now, nor never has been, the law that a jury or court clothed with power to determine disputed questions of fact, could not base their determination upon the uncorroborated story of a witness."

As a matter of fact, the court added, "men have been convicted of every crime defined in the statutes upon the testimony of a single witness. The propriety of this may be doubtful but it is implanted in our jurisprudence and is settled beyond question."

F. L. Johnson was counsel for Glover and Hargrave.

DOCTORS FORM PLAN TO CHECK WHOOPING COUGH IN SCHOOLS

Because the prevalence of whooping cough throughout Greene County has reached alarming proportions, the Greene County Medical Society and Dr. A. D. DeHaven, city health commissioner, have outlined a procedure to be followed in combatting the disease by the Xenia city schools.

Instructions have been issued as follows:

1—Any child who coughs in such a manner as to indicate to the teacher he or she may have whooping cough should be sent home immediately.

2—No child who has been sent home after coughing in a suspicious manner may be admitted to the school room without a doctor's certificate.

3—Any child who has been admitted upon a doctor's certificate and thereafter coughs in a suspicious manner shall be again sent home immediately.

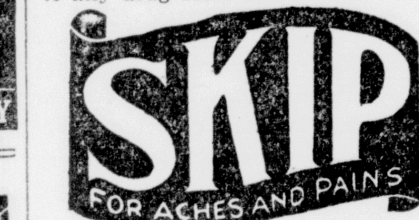

This procedure is said to be understood by all the physicians of the community, who have agreed that a teacher having the children under observation during the day has a better opportunity to judge the presence of whooping cough than a doctor in a few minutes examination.

Children having whooping cough should not be admitted to school for four weeks after the coughing began, the instructions also say.

Physicians do not attempt to give an explanation for the prevalence of the ailment throughout the county and no estimate as to the number of cases is available, but the

CONVICTIONS UNDER LIQUOR LAW UPHELD BY APPEALS COURT

H. F. Glover, proprietor of a hotel at Jamestown, and C. O. Hargrave, Jamestown-Cedarville Pike, must each pay fines of $200 and costs imposed in July 1928, the Greene County Court of Appeals ruled Thursday in sustaining their convictions in Probate Court on charges of selling liquor.

The argument advanced in the appeal of the defendants was to the effect that there is no corroborating evidence of the testimony of the man to whom it is claimed the liquor was sold and furnished of the facts essential to their conviction.

The appellate court pointed out, however, that while this claim is substantially correct, "it is not now, nor never has been, the law that a jury or court clothed with power to determine disputed questions of fact, could not base their determination upon the uncorroborated story of a witness."

"As a matter of fact," the court added, "men have been convicted of every crime defined in the statutes upon the testimony of a single witness. The propriety of this may be doubtful but it is implanted in our jurisprudence and is settled beyond question."

F. L. Johnson was counsel for Glover and Hargrave.

MISS DAISY GLASS CLAIMED BY DEATH

Miss Daisy Glass, 40, died at the State Hospital at Dayton, Wednesday as the result of tubercular trouble. She is the daughter of William Glass of north of Jamestown.

Miss Glass is survived by three sisters, Mrs. Rollo Davids, Bowersville, Miss Grace Glass, Jamestown, and a sister in Springfield, and two brothers, Frank and George of near Jamestown.

Funeral services were held at the Stewart and Burr Funeral Parlor Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Jamestown cemetery.

Thursday carried off honors for record-breaking weather with the mixture of high wind, rain and snow of Thursday night.

Xenians shivered over their cereal and cream Friday morning in the hardly cheerful temperature of thirty-five degrees, but at that the temperature was a considerable improvement over the preceding evening.

Starting between 9 and 10 p. m. Thursday, wind whipped a mixture of rain and snow into stinging particles, blinding pedestrians and drivers of vehicles.

The prevailing if not popular temperature Friday morning between 40 and 50 degrees, but under the warming influence of the sun the weather was improving from the standpoint of comfort.

Thursday's rain may have been good for the flowers but it played havoc with the sunshine.

No damage was reported over the county as a result of the storm.

M'DILL INJURED

Warnock McDill, Springfield, son of Mrs. Kate McDill, Dayton Ave., suffered a dislocated knee and his wife, Mrs. Beatrice McDill, was cut on the neck in an auto accident in Springfield Thursday night. ## DOCTORS FORM PLAN TO CHECK WHOOPING COUGH IN SCHOOLS

Because the prevalence of whooping cough throughout Greene County has reached alarming proportions, the Greene County Medical Society and Dr. A. D. DeHaven, city health commissioner, have outlined a procedure to be followed in combating the disease by the Xenia city schools.

Instructions have been issued as follows:

1.—Any child who coughs in such a manner as to indicate to the teacher he or she may have whooping cough should be sent home immediately.

2.—No child who has been sent home after coughing in a suspicious manner shall be again sent to school without a doctor's certificate.

3.—Any child who has been admitted upon a doctor's certificate and thereafter coughs in a suspicious manner shall be again sent home immediately.

This procedure is said to be understood by all the physicians of the community, who have agreed that a teacher having the children under observation during the day has a better opportunity to judge the presence of whooping cough than a doctor in a few minutes examination.

Children having whooping cough should not be admitted to school for four weeks after the coughing began, the instructions also say.

Physicians do not attempt to give an explanation for the prevalence of the ailment throughout the county and no estimate as to the number of cases is available, but the

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

GOD DEMANDS ALL—God is jealous and the Lord revengeth and is furious; the Lord will take vengeance on his adversaries, and he reserveth wrath for his enemies.—Nahum 1:2.

FOR A "PARENTS' DAY"

Mother's Day, celebrated each year on the second Sunday in May, should be changed to Parents' Day, says George J. Hecht, chairman of the board of editors of "Children, The Parents' Magazine."

The day should be given a broader significance, he says.

"On this day it is parenthood which should be honored—not mothers alone, but mother and father together for their joint share in home-making and child-rearing," says the magazine. "The father's contribution to family life has too often been considered merely a financial one. But with a better understanding of the importance of family relationships has come the realization that the father exerts a strong influence on the lives of his children. A Parents' Day would foster in children a proper recognition and appreciation of the unselfish devotion and self sacrifice of both mothers and fathers."

"But even more important, the public observance of a Parents' Day would serve to emphasize the responsibilities of parenthood. The old idea that parents were to be revered merely because they were parents is fast disappearing."

"Mothers and fathers everywhere are realizing that they cannot rely on instinct and love alone in bringing up their children. Today we have a science of child-rearing. Doctors in their practice, bacteriologists in their laboratories, psychologists in their clinics, teachers in their classrooms, visiting nurses and social workers in their rounds, are all finding out things vitally important for parents to know and to practice. A number of our great universities have recently established institutes of child development research. The important findings of these institutions should have the widest dissemination among parents, everywhere. A Parents' Day would serve not only as an occasion on which children would express filial love and respect, but also to emphasize the widespread need for parental education. We vision the various agencies that are concerned with parental education, the churches, schools, and all other great organizations that have the welfare of the American home at heart, develop a constructive and impressive program for Parents' Day."

You wait for spring all winter, and then some day wake up to find it has passed by.

Your BROADWAY

By Walter Winchell And Mine

NEW YORK—We have just discovered that certain Chicago theatre ushers are better trained and disciplined than our own seat-directors. It appears that the West Point idea was first tried out there, anyway, and that New York ushers will in time be their equals.

Hi Phillips, incidentally, says he is through going to the Roxy theatre in New York because the last time he frequented it he flopped—only getting two bows.

ALWAYS BELITTLIN'
Among our other bosses at one time was E. F. Albee, one of the founders of vaudeville and the Keith circuit. It was on his weekly, The Vaudeville News, in 1921, that we began what is laughingly called a career. The wage was then $25 per week. We met Mr. Albee recently for the first time since September, 1924. "I used to work for you, sir," we said by way of introduction. "Remember?"

"To be sure," was the affable enough reply. "You're getting up in the world, aren't you? I see your stuff every day in the Larchmont Times."

GAG
George Olsen offers the one about the illiterate musical comedy producer who was watching a rehearsal of his show. He interrupted the orchestra leader to ask: "Wot kind of an instrument is dat which de fellow on de end is blowing?"

"That's a bassoon," said the conductor.

"Himmmmm," was the reply. "It looks wery pretty; put one on de other end, also."

THE NEW VERSION
Rudy Vallee, the new matinee idol, radio personality and orchestra favorite, was approached by an old Jewish lady and her eight-year-old son, Abie.

"Wister Vallee," she began, "is dis a fact dot you make a whole lot moneh playing on you sexaphun?"

"Yes, I do," replied Vallee. "I make Victor records in the mornings, I make radio every day, I play at the Paramount theatre and at nights at my own night club, for which I make $3,600 every week."

"Oy!" shrieked the woman as she banished Abie's wallow on the ear, "now will you precise, hah?"

OF ALL THINGS!
It happened at the Newsboys' clubhouse on William street recently. A grudge fight between two amateurs. Both pretty good fighters with a large following. As they sat in their corners, the trainers of their opponents saw to it that no one was putting anything over on them. The trainers put the gloves on the opposing boxer. One lad sat in his corner with his hands resting on the ropes. One hand on each side of him, intently watching his opponent, who sat in the opposite corner. All the while his gloves were being adjusted by the other fellow's trainer.

The gong rang and the lad in the other corner sprang out to meet the opposition. He lost no time punching fast and furious, with the other kid hardly raising his head. The referee then discovered that his gloves were tied to the rope. In this meantime he had his block knocked off.

There probably will be a murder on the east side this week.

RACE LEADERSHIP

One learns in the news from Stockholm that the English language is becoming more popular in Sweden. English today, in the principal high school of the capital of Sweden, is studied by more pupils than any other foreign language. Once German ranked first. Items like this call us back to the thought of the responsibility of leadership. The English speaking people of the earth are now in a position of leadership. If they are to do much more and go much further they must feel the burden of moral responsibility.

BOTTLING UP WORDS

A new device invented by the telephone people can "bottle up" a word. Spoken into a transmitter, the transmission of the word is delayed. It finally passes along the wire and comes out later, in the same voice. The retarding principle is used in transatlantic telephoning and in long land cables in overcoming echoes that arise in the lapse of time required for spoken words to travel so far.

What a fine thing it would be if we would catch and bring back some of the words we utter! Just how many of our words would we let go if we had a chance to recall and examine them after we have sent them out? It's a wise man who can think straight enough and fashion his words rapidly and accurately enough to make any recall unnecessary and undesirable.

HUNCHES

Marion Talley, 22-year old prima donna, says she has been following "hunches" all her life. It was a hunch that made her start singing lessons at the age of eleven. Now a hunch has animated her to quit the Metropolitan Opera company and seek to live on a farm. She says she wants to move out on a farm, wear aprons and dig in the dirt.

Marion Talley may or may not be doing a wise thing. Time will tell. On the average, hunches are not dependable. We too frequently have desires which we like to call hunches. They usually tell us to do the thing we want to do. It may turn out to be the worst thing we ever did. Government by hunches are not dependable.

BY THINKING ABOUT IT

A successful business man was asked how he accounted for the high position he had reached.

"By always thinking about my job," he said.

That's a pretty hard order to fill. Not many men, in high or low positions, care to be always thinking about the job. But the reason that most of us do not get any further than we do is because we do not think enough about our job. Just going through the motions and thereby holding a position is by no means reaching success. Almost anybody can go through the motions. The prizes are for those who reach out and expand their tasks, who take on more than they are hired to do, who think about their jobs and devise better methods of performance.

CHANGE OF POLITICS SUGGESTED IN USE OF SECURITIES

By LOUIS T. McFADDEN
Congressman from Pennsylvania (Louis T. McFadden was born at Troy, Pa., July 25, 1876. He was educated in the public schools of that city and a commercial college. Beginning as an office boy in the First National bank at Canton, Pa., at the age of 16, he gradually rose to the office of president, in 1916. He was elected to congress in 1915 and has been re-elected every term since, from the 15th district. He is a Republican and his home is in Canton.)

The weakest spot in the financial structure of the United States is to be found in the large volume of savings deposits invested by banks in a class of securities which have been "frozen" largely by the constant changing policies of the federal reserve system.

The marketability produced by an active supply and demand for the class of securities now issued and dealt in on the stock exchange demands a change in the attitude toward this class of securities, in my opinion.

The restrictions imposed on the use of this class of securities might well be modified, and the fear of a misuse which would create inflation through the making of liquid assets might be obviated by limiting the total volume of this class of securities which might be made eligible.

I believe the New York Stock Exchange, as a private association, can better control its members and its business than it can be controlled by federal or state laws or by incorporation under those laws.

However, there should be more strict examination of the assets and liabilities of the exchange members by independent audit or by examinations comparable to that of banks by the comptroller of the currency.

The federal reserve system as now constituted is composed of about 10 officers and directors

SPEAKING OF AIR TRAGEDIES—

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

A woman may do so very much for her looks by choosing becoming colors—and emphasizing harmony in her whole ensemble—blending clothes, hats, make-up, eyes, and hair, in color harmony! I could write volumes on this very subject, for it is one that means a great deal to me—one in which I have experimented and studied during a large part of my career.

Too many women are "color-blind"—not with the dangerous color blindness that makes them see red and green and vice versa—but with the stupid, artistic lack of beauty in color sense that makes them wear shades that do not become them.

Fashion artists and cosmeticians are fast coming to meet the need of women who cannot choose appropriate color for themselves by making out color charts to suit each different type. And I believe that the day will soon come when a feminine shopper will not purchase a single garment until she has tried it against her skin, under a natural and an artificial light.

Some of the better shops now furnish this service—especially the dressmaking establishments. And the women who patronize them show to good effect the advantage it has.

Until the practice is widespread every fastidious woman must do the best she can along these lines for herself. Within us all there is the ability to see when opportunity presents itself, what colors make us look best. The difficulty lies in finding those colors in a short, busy shopping time.

Any woman who is not sure of her color sense may profitably follow this plan. It is not expensive, and the small effort it requires will more than repay itself in beauty and satisfaction.

Get samples of silk—generous samples—so that the effect may be seen readily in every color that you might conceivably care to wear. Sit before your dressing table and then first in a natural daylight and then in an evening light—and drape them by turns against the skin of your neck. With pencil and paper make careful notes of those which flatter you. Then plan out your season's wardrobe—sticking close to the few colors that you have found most becoming. By further experiment with powders and rouges, you will discover that you can wear other shades that had seemed impossible. A sallow brunette, for example, may wear the new, yellow-greens or bright blues by using with them a warm, bluish powder that brightens her skin and a bright, light shade of rouge. And with the fashionable gypsy tan make-up in one of its tones almost any type may wear almost any color, except some shades of pink and lavender, very becomingly.

These difficult effects, however, should not be attempted except after careful experiment. But it is a comfort to know that soon, by a judicious choice of cosmetics, a clever woman may wear colors that hitherto had been denied her.

In the meantime, the safest course for us all is to find our colors and stick to them.

Among the shades that fashion offers us each season there are several—or at least one—that suits each of us better than the others. Find those colors. Build your wardrobe around them. Have accessories to harmonize—and plan to have your costume, whatever the occasion—strike one completely beautiful chord of color harmony.

parison is not even as favorable as this, the average falling under $12 weekly, in contrast with $25 to $30 for the same work in the north.

All sides the labor is mentioned as of excellent quality and, at the outset, contented with a very low wage, because of the small incomes general among the mountain farmers, upon which the mills drew for their supply of hands.

With town life, a rising percentage of literacy, the return of many young men from war service, advancing living costs and the spread of organization in some localities, dissatisfaction with the old rate of pay began to grow.

The management of the rayon plant at Elizabethton, Tenn., is credited at Labor Federation headquarters with having wished, at first, to offer higher wages, but to have been discouraged by captains of neighboring industries from doing so, lest it aggravate their own workers' discontent.

It was at about this time that "speeding up" methods made their appearance on an increasing scale at such textile plants as those at Gastonia and Lexington, N. C., and Anderson, Greenville and Spartanburg, S. C.

The change did not involve a reduction in the number of hands employed, but it did increase the amount of labor per worker, without increased pay. It is, so the workers complained, a part to keep all the terms of the agreement reached, and fresh negotiations were started by the labor department's representatives.

Meanwhile the adjustment of the then fully developed tie-up in the two Carolinas mills had been rendered difficult by the presence of conflicting groups of labor representatives in the field.

Though the mill workers had been unionized in spots by the American Federation, they were in part unorganized until communistic leaders recently arrived from New England and New York, and with these the owners have refused to deal, the Federation's representatives at the same time holding aloof.

Absentee ownership of the mills further complicates the situation.

The textile plants are, indeed, to some extent in southern hands, but the best official estimate in Washington is that 70 per cent of their stock is held either in the north, or—though in small part—abroad. The Elizabethton rayon enterprise, established by German capital, alone is wholly, or almost wholly, owned outside the United States.

HAVE YOU HAD YOUR COPPER TODAY?

"What food has the most iron in it? My doctor gave me injections of iron in the arms, but told me it would do me much more good if I ate the foods that provide iron also. I want to do this but don't know what to eat. MRS. N."

It used to be questioned if inorganic iron medication had any value, but it is now believed, as your doctor told you, that it is beneficial in anemic patients. It is sufficient of the organic iron is taken in the foods at the same time.

Animal experiments by Steenbock and his co-workers in Wisconsin, and others, have shown that iron medication can be made to serve this purpose admirably if there is fed with it, cabbage or extract of cabbage. And it was shown that the element in cabbage, lettuce (and liver) that helps this inorganic iron to be assimilated is copper! Copper is an element that heretofore has not been considered important to the construction of the red coloring matter of the red blood cells and has to do with the very vital process of carrying oxygen which burns the food-stuff, liberating its elements to be taken up by the system and carrying away the gaseous refuse, carbon dioxide.

I haven't read of any work on the analysis of foods for copper, but lettuce, liver and cabbage are mentioned. I'll give you a list of the foods high in iron; it may be possible that all of them have some copper also. I would take some fresh cabbage every day, Mrs. N. It is high in vitamins, and for these alone it is one of the leaders in the vegetable kingdom.

Foods High In Iron

Vegetables: Spinach, string beans, cabbage, lettuce, Brussels sprouts, celery, tomatoes, carrots, peas and potatoes.

Animal Foods: Lean meats (fish is not high in iron), and egg yolks (egg yolks have a very high percentage).

Cereals: Whole wheat and oatmeal.

Nuts: Almonds, peanuts and walnuts.

Fruits: Fresh fruits, while they do not contain a high per cent of iron, have it in a valuable form. Dried fruits—dates, figs, prunes and raisins—are relatively high.

The vegetables and fruits are not only valuable because they are rich in iron and other minerals in them and are alkaline in their final reaction in the body, but because they are high in vitamins and furnish bulk (so necessary for normal peristalsis) as well as energy value.

"I am troubled with what is known as 'hammer toe' and am very seriously considering having it amputated. Would you advise me to do so? Some of my friends tell me, by all means, rid myself of it; others advise me to strongly against it. I finally reached the stage where I did not know which way to turn and consulted our family doctor. He told me it could never be cured and that it should be amputated. But now I am still wondering whether I should have it done or not. MISS L."

I don't suppose we'll ever make the layman realize the danger of giving medical advice. "Take a good dose of castor oil. 'Take a good dose of castor oil. 'Take a good dose of castor oil and dies from ruptured appendix, for it happened that his trouble was not the same as A's."

With your doctor, I don't know of anything that is of any benefit to hammer toe except its removal, after early infancy, at least (during early infancy it can be corrected with strappings and splints).

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

I asked a couple of charming young women—unmarried—what they thought made the most unhappiness in married life. One said unfaithfulness and the other said jealousy. I intended that to be a faithful person must have a certain amount of attractiveness, and wouldn't a girl, for instance, rather have a husband whom other girls admired, than a dull? Therefore, couldn't she, perhaps, forgive a flirtatious husband easily than one with some other fault? But one of the girls still insisted she could not forgive a man who was unfaithful.

The other said she had a relative who had wrecked the happiness of his home because of his unreasoning jealousy. When I was young, like these two, I used to cogitate deeply on human conduct, and at last remarked, "It all depends on the individual." And I'm sure inclined to think my youthful judgment correct. The handling of any situation DOES depend on the individual involved. And no two handle things alike.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: Won't you please help me? I am 23, going with a man 38. I love him and he claims he loves me, that he can't do without me. But when he gets angry at me he goes with other girls until we speak. Then he is all right again for awhile. He has been married, but is not living with his wife. He claims he does love her, but when he drinks he talks about his wife and family. Do you think the reason he talks is on account of his children? Their ages are from seven to 18. They had three.

"They have been parted for two years. He claims the reason he left her was on account of her running around and leaving the children home by themselves. I have also been married, but am not living with my husband. I have been parted from him nine months. I have seen my mistake and I wrote to him and said I was sorry, let's start all over again, but he did not answer my letter.

ANXIOUS.
You women who have husbands and leave them and love some one else and want to marry them and JOY: How do you know the boy isn't already married? It is dangerous to allow such familiarities from a man you merely know in such a way. He thinks he is being a successful salesman, and that is his "line." If he was really in love with you he would try to see you at your home. If a boy puts his arms around you and you don't like it, either tell him to stop as if you meant it, or move away and keep out of his way.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am 19. I have two boy friends who are brothers. Both say they love me dearly and want to marry. Both have good sense and want to wait until they can give me a home. One is 23, has a good business of his own. The other is 19 and never stays with one job long. If I go with 19, 23 will break, but if I go with 23, 19 says it's all right. I am a person that can learn to care for anyone. Don't you think I'm old enough to go with one boy steady? I am rather settled and don't care about running around. Please advise as soon as possible, because I'm going to JUMP at your advice.

PUZZLED BLUE EYES.
If you are ready to settle down and can love 23, he is your best bet for a boy friend and a husband, too. The other is too young to consider seriously and too happy-go-lucky.

Lace is frequently found trimming sleeveless chiffon blouses. It is applied about the neck, trimming a jabot and banding the hipline.

Peter's Adventures

BY FLORENCE VINCENT

OFF TO THE LAKE OF THE LOONS

"Honk! Honk! Honk! Form in line and follow me. We go to the Lake of the Loons," quacked Father Gander.

With glad cries at leaving the sad spot Ganders, Geese and Goslings made ready for the flight. Suddenly had the boy taken his place upon his wild friends back than off the rock started, Gander at the head of the flying V-shaped column that, alas! was so much smaller than it had been the night before.

Peter thought that he knew all about how it felt to ride through the air, but never had he been so near to the clouds as this.

Up, up, up mounted the Wild Geese until it grew so cold that the boy would have had his ears and nose frosted if he had not snuggled down among Gander's feathers.

Bliff! They were running straight into a big gray cloud, but it opened to let them pass and the boy felt something wet upon his cheek. For a minute Peter thought it was raining, but now they were out of the gray mass and the sun was shining, so he knew it must have been mist from the cloud they had left behind.

"They flew and flew and flew. 'Well,' thought the boy, 'this may seem like a short distance to these Geese, but I feel as though I was flying to the ends of the earth.' Gander has forgotten all about me, I do believe. Anyhow, he has not said a word since we started and I am certainly not going to speak before he does. I might startle him so he would throw me off his back. He said at twilight, I reached Loon Lake at twilight. The sun is just almost that of his mind to set. I'm making up my mind to set. I wonder if those are the woods Gander said he would 'see me out of.' We must be going to enter them, for we are heading right that way."

Don't ask questions unless you have to! Keep your eyes open and when you think you can, wait and see what happens. But at the very first danger signal warn your comrades and flee for your life. Thus had his experiences among his so feathered friends taught him, though he was nearly bursting his small sides with curiosity to know just where his steed was going. Peter leaned as far over as he dared and stared at the landscape beneath him.

Here and there he could make out what things were. How strange everything looked. A house, he knew it was a house, for he saw smoke coming out of its chimney, spun around like a top for a minute and then danced backward out of sight. A fence zigzagged dizzily up and down like a long white snake. A tiny pond twinkled up at him like a bright eye and then was gone.

PHILLIPSBURG CARDINALS TO OPPOSE RESERVES ON SUNDAY

Eight of the nine regular members of the Phillipsburg Cardinals baseball team, which opposes the Reserve nine at Washington Park Sunday afternoon in the second game of the local season, are left-hand batters.

CENTRAL WILL NOT BE REPRESENTED AT LEAGUE TRACK MEET

Xenia Central High School will not send any representatives to the track and field meet to be held at Greenville Saturday under auspices of the Miami Valley League. The other five schools, however, expect to be represented.

Fourteen events comprise the program, including eight track and six field events.

These events include the 100-yard, 220-yard and 440-yard dashes, 880-yard run, mile run, mile relay, 120-yard high hurdles, 220-yard low hurdles, pole vault, high jump, broad jump, discus throw, javelin throw and twelve-pound shot put. Qualifying heats for the 120-yard and 220-yard dashes will take place Saturday morning and the remainder of the program will be run off in the afternoon.

E. G. Whitworth, faculty manager of Xenia Central, will probably act as one of the judges.

Greenville High extended an invitation to other league schools to participate in the meet, and inasmuch as this school receives all of the "gate," it will award a suitable trophy to the winning school.

KONJOLA ENDED DOUBLE AILMENT AFTER 15 YEARS

Stomach And Kidney Troubles Yielded To New Medicine—Feel Like A Different Man

"My confidence in Konjola was certainly rewarded," said Mr. H. Reneker, 754 Second Street, New Philadelphia.

"For fifteen years my life had been miserable, due to the suffering I endured from stomach and kidney troubles. I tried many medicines but always met with failure. If I ate certain foods, I suffered agonies. My stomach bloated and I had no appetite. I lost weight and strength. I was nervous, and my sleep was frequently disturbed by frequent bladder actions.

"A neighbor recommended Konjola, and this new medicine seemed to fit my case exactly. Two bottles made a marked improvement. My kidneys were strengthened, and my stomach is in perfect condition. New strength and energy are mine. I have never heard of any medicine that can be compared to Konjola. I know that others will be interested in my happy experience."

Konjola is sold in Xenia at Gallagher Drug Store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.—Adv.

"I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to build me up and for the Change of Life and I can't get along without it. I lost about twenty pounds and I felt weak and run-down. I find it gives me strength and quiets my nerves. I have two daughters and I gave it to them when they came into womanhood and was greatly pleased at the results. I will answer any letter asking for information."—Mrs. L. E. Hanson, Waterloo, Iowa.

SUBMIT PLANS FOR COURT HOUSE WORK

Plans and specifications submitted by the Schachne Studios Co., Dayton, have been adopted as a basis of interior re-decoration work to be done at the Court House.

The decoration committee which has the project in charge has appointed a sub-committee composed of Clerk of Courts Harvey Elam and Mrs. P. H. Flynn to modify and revise the plans.

County Commissioners have voted an appropriation to finance the work. The total cost, it is estimated, will be between $2,500 and $3,000.

Plans call for re-decorating the main corridor, second floor corridor and Common Pleas Court room. This work is to be done in oil and all mural paintings are to be maintained and brightened up.

FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE BY COURT

Entering a guilty plea to a charge of possessing liquor, Walter Connell, 40, near Cedarville, was fined $300 and costs by Probate Judge S. C. Wright Thursday.

His arrest followed a raid on his home Wednesday night in which two gallons of corn whiskey and a quantity of home brew was confiscated. The raiding officers destroyed eighty bottles of home brew and dumped out ten more gallons in the making, they reported. The whiskey had been buried in the ground and the officers dug it up.

Sheriff Ohmer Tate led the raid, assisted by his two deputies. Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall also went along.

WINS PRIZE

Announcement was made at Columbus Thursday that Mrs. Marion P. Adams, student at Antioch College, Yellow Springs, is one of the two Ohio college students who were awarded prizes in the national prize essay contest of the American Chemical Society for 1928-29. Mrs. Adams was one of the seventeen women prize winners.

DANGER LIES IN BULKLESS DIETS

Eat ALL-BRAN and Prevent Constipation

Thousands of people wonder why they are suffering when they try to be so careful regarding their diet. They have headaches, bad complexions and are unhappy because their old-time strength and vigor are gone.

Constipation is often the cause of this bad health. And lack of bulk in the diet is usually the cause of constipation. Roughage is needed daily to sweep the system clean of poisonous wastes. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will supply this roughage.

ALL-BRAN works as nature works. It is guaranteed to bring relief — to prevent constipation.

Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Ready-to-eat with milk or cream. Delicious in flavor. Add it to your muffins and other hot breads. Try the recipes on the package. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN because it is 100% bran. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Served in hotels, restaurants and dining-cars. Sold by all grocers.

SUBMIT PLANS FOR COURT HOUSE WORK

Plans and specifications submitted by the Schachne Studios Co., Dayton, have been adopted as a basis of interior re-decoration work to be done at the Court House.

The decoration committee which has the project in charge has appointed a sub-committee composed of Clerk of Courts Harvey Elam and Mrs. P. H. Flynn to modify and revise the plans.

County Commissioners have voted an appropriation to finance the work. The total cost, it is estimated, will be between $2,500 and $3,000.

Plans call for re-decorating the main corridor, second floor corridor and Common Pleas Court room. This work is to be done in oil and all mural paintings are to be maintained and brightened up.

FINED ON LIQUOR CHARGE BY COURT

Entering a guilty plea to a charge of possessing liquor, Walter Connell, 40, near Cedarville, was fined $300 and costs by Probate Judge S. C. Wright Thursday.

His arrest followed a raid on his home Wednesday night in which two gallons of corn whiskey and a quantity of home brew was confiscated. The raiding officers destroyed eighty bottles of home brew and dumped out ten more gallons in the making, they reported. The whiskey had been buried in the ground and the officers dug it up.

Sheriff Ohmer Tatig led the raid, assisted by his two deputies, Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall also went along.

One of the great contributions that the United States of America has given to the world is that of charity. The United States has been criticized as being the Shylock of the world but where in all history has there ever been such an exhibition of charity as this nation has shown in the past decade? War victims of Belgium, Armenian refugees, French orphans—all have found a sympathetic contributor in America. There is no doubt that the activities of organizations like the Red Cross is a phenomenon unparalleled in the history of mankind and a contribution to that spirit of good will which is an essential part of the civilization. This is practical Christianity and the United States has demonstrated many times this charitable attitude.

THE LAYMEN

"It is the Church's special function to uphold the finer things, To teach the way of living from which all that's noble springs; But the minister can't do it single-handed and alone, For the laymen of the country are the church's cornerstone."

"When you see a church that's empty, though its doors are open wide, It is not the church that's dying—it's the laymen who have died. For it's not by song or sermon that the church's work is done, It's the laymen of the country who for God must carry on."

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

Jeremiah was the prophet of judgment, announcing woes that were to come to his people; he was also the prophet of sorrow sometimes called "the weeping prophet." However he was a man of buoyant temper, optimistic and one of the most heroic characters in the entire Bible.

V. 6. "Then said I, Ah, Lord Jehovah; Behold, I know not how to speak; for I am a child." He was naturally timid; he had no experience as a public speaker; for him to be a prophet seemed an impossible task. He knew also how unwelcome righteousness and truth would be.

V. 7. "And Jehovah said unto me, Say not I am a child; for to whomsoever I shall send thee thou shalt go, and whatsoever I shall command thee thou shalt speak." When one is called to a hard task many excuses may be made; but no great work would be done if excuses were accepted. When one does his best in carrying out the will of God, God then renews one's efforts; if the call is to speak the truth, God allies himself with its utterance.

V. 8. "Be not afraid of them; for I am with thee to deliver thee." This promise is repeated by the Lord, "Lo, I am with thee always even unto the end."

Vs. 9, 10. "Then Jehovah put forth his hand and touched my mouth; and Jehovah said unto me, behold I have put my words in thy mouth." God's word spoken has the effect "to pluck up and to break down and to destroy and to overthrow, to build, and to plant." Obedience to God will follow a wholesale destruction followed by a general reconstruction.

V. 8. "And it came to pass when Jeremiah had made an end of all that Jehovah had commanded him to speak unto all the people, that the priests and the prophets and all the people laid hold on him, saying thou shalt surely die." The two "alls" are significant. The prophet omitted nothing in his messages and he addressed all the people—the strong as well as the weak. Often the one who fearlessly denounces sin is threatened with death.

V. 11. "Then spake the priests and the prophets unto the princes and to all the people, saying, This man is worthy of death; for he hath prophesied against this city, as ye have heard with your ears."

HOW HELP DEVELOP THE PRAYER LIFE OF A CLASS OF PRIMARY BOYS WHO RECEIVE LITTLE OR NO RELIGIOUS TRAINING OUTSIDE THE SUNDAY SCHOOL?

The child must feel the realness and nearness of God in his own life in order to pray. He might first be led to say just a "Thank you" for some particular pleasure to the group. Each Sunday session should be started with an invitation to God in prayer to be with the class during that period. These simple expressions will soon come from the children themselves. Emphasis should be placed on the fact that the most respectful manner possible should always be observed in addressing God. After these beginnings of prayer life are made in the class period, an effort should be made to carry it over into the outside life of the child. The suggestion might be made that it is a good thing to talk with so great a Friend each day, the teacher illustrating personally some of the benefits to be derived from communion with God in prayer.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. Why does righteous truth enrage some people? When should the truth be uttered or withheld?
2. Why is democracy a hard government to administer?
3. Why did democracy fail in Russia, Italy and Spain?
4. What restraints in our government safeguard us against hasty actions?
5. What can be done to check the mob spirit in our land?
6. Why did some think that Christ was Jeremiah raised from the grave?

Rev. Hugh Black says, "We can learn from Jeremiah the paramount claims of duty. Learn to give up all the undisciplined desires and unchastened dreams after self satisfaction. Learn to submit personal inclinations to be true to God and the right. And if it be the will of God that you must tread a path that you choose not, from which the weak heart shrinks, know that the blessedness promised by Christ is yours, and cherish a sweet thought of closer communion with him who also was made perfect by suffering."

BRYAN HIGH SENIOR CLASS TO PRODUCE PLAY ON THURSDAY

The annual senior class play of Bryan High School at Yellow Springs will be presented at the Yellow Springs Opera House Thursday night, May 9, at 8 p. m.

A Samuel French production, "The Patsy," is the choice of this year's graduates. The play is thoroughly modern and is full of rippling humor. "Patsy" is a mis-created daughter of a traveling salesman. She is secretly in love with her sister's fiancé, but, of course, cannot divulge her love. "Tony," the young man in question, is unaware of Patsy's attention towards him but realizes the girl is in love with someone. He volunteers to help Patsy land the man she is after. Complications occur, embarrassing situations occur, and through it all runs a continuous vein of humor that keeps the audience in an uproar of laughter.

Beatrice Stevens has been selected to take the role of "Patsy." Every Leiserson is the hen-pecked husband and Vera Lingo, the dominating wife and mother of Patsy. Helen Stewart plays the part of the older sister, Grace Harrington; and Jack Tibbs, who starts the trouble, takes the part of Tony. Billy Caldwell is played by Hughes Wilson; Francis O'Flaherty, by William Davitt; "Trip" Rusty, a taxi driver, by Frank Stewart; and Sadie Buchanan, by Evelyn Haley.

Between acts, a chorus from the opera "Yeomen of the Guard," will be given by a group of Antioch College students.

Learn to submit personal inclinations to be true to God and the right. And if it be the will of God that you must tread a path that you choose not, from which the weak heart shrinks, know that the blessedness promised by Christ is yours, and cherish a sweet thought of closer communion with him who also was made perfect by suffering."

HOW HELP DEVELOP THE PRAYER LIFE OF A CLASS OF PRIMARY BOYS WHO RECEIVE LITTLE OR NO RELIGIOUS TRAINING OUTSIDE THE SUNDAY SCHOOL?

The child must feel the realness and nearness of God in his own life in order to pray. He might first be led to say just a "Thank you" for some particular happening that has brought pleasure to the group. Each Sunday session should be started with an invitation to God in prayer to be with the class during that period. These simple expressions will soon come from the children themselves. Emphasis should be placed on the fact that the most respectful manner possible should always be observed in addressing God. After these beginnings of prayer life are made in the class period, an effort should be made to carry it over into the outside life of the child. The suggestion might be made that it is a good thing to talk with so great a Friend each day, the teacher illustrating personally some of the benefits to be derived from communion with God in prayer.

Another Prince of the Blood

Blind Hatred Caused Murder Impulse And Then He Slipped

Four wars without even as much as a scratch is the unique record of Major-General Wendell C. Neville, commandant of the Marine Corps, but his bathtub was his Waterloo. The commandant lies in the naval hospital at Washington, nursing a fractured rib, which he suffered when he slipped and fell in his bathtub.

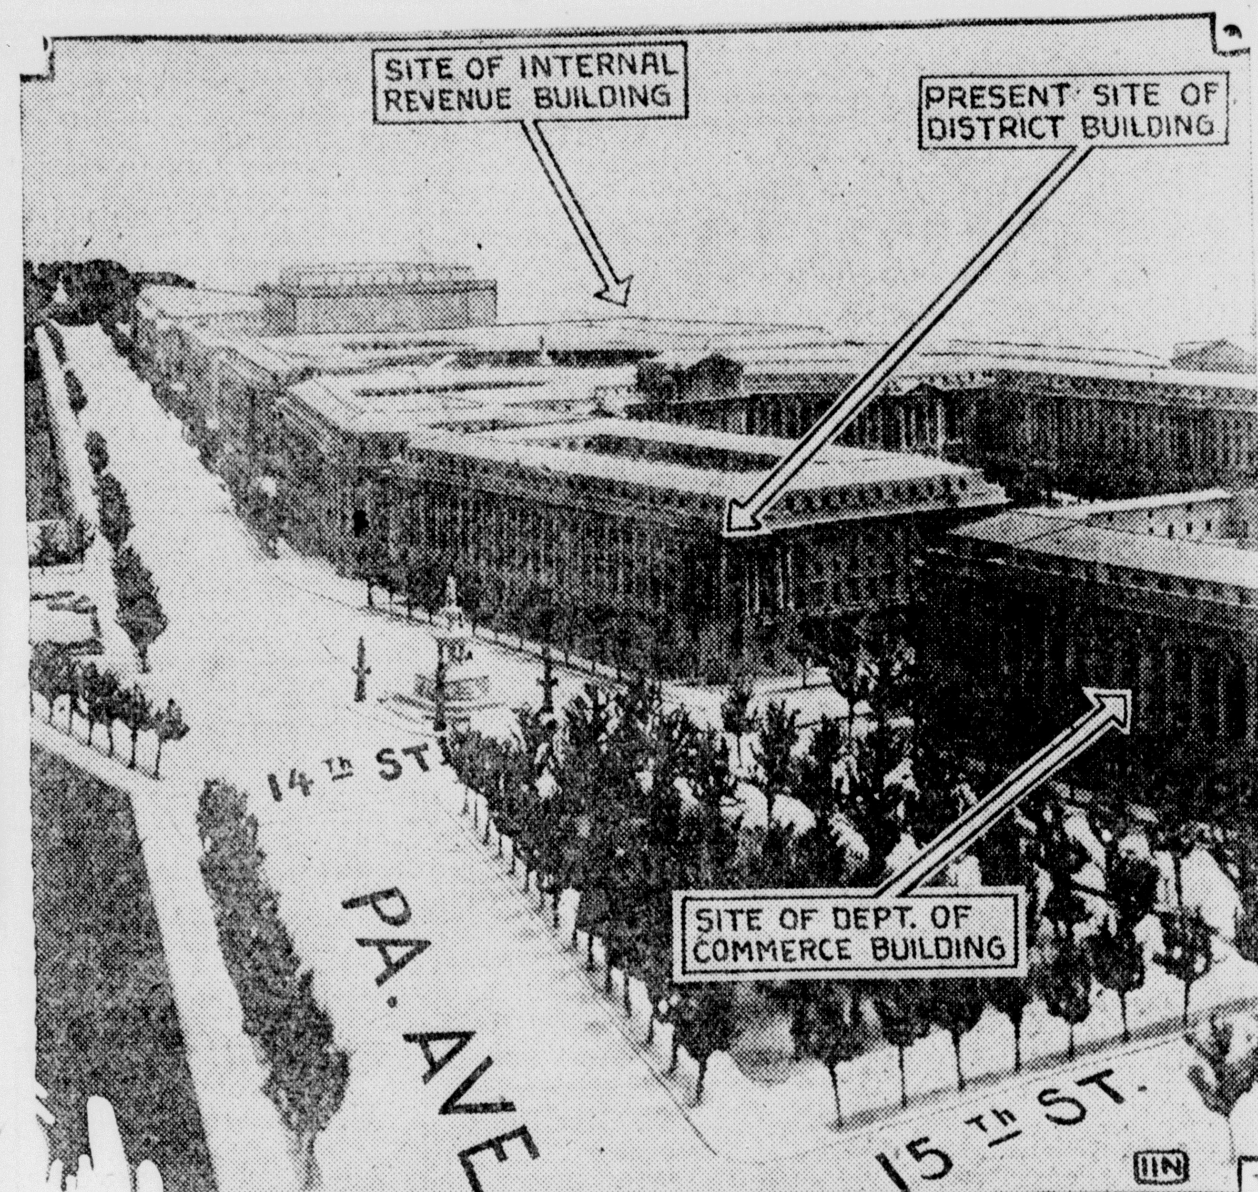

Breaking down under the grilling by the police, Earl Peacox, lower left, told all of his brutal murder and subsequent attempt to incinerate the body of his bride of a year, Dorothy Peacox, upper left. How he killed her with a book end in the apartment in Mount Vernon, N. Y., where they formerly lived. How he brought the body to the lonely spot near Scarsdale and tried to burn it. How he attempted to establish an alibi through the aid of his sweetheart, Frances Newman, right, by carrying her back into the house from which he had carried the dead body of his wife. Miss Newman is being held as a material witness. The case will go to the Grand Jury next week.

Mother of Torch Slayer in Distress

Romaine Peacox is shown at the district attorney's office, New York, trying to console his mother, Mrs. Catherine Peacox, who is horrified at the crime confessed by another son, Earl, the murder of his 20-year-old wife by strangulation, later soaking her clothes in kerosene with intent to burn her.

The fact that the wave failed to materialize didn't lessen their bravery in the eyes of the islanders. Above, the pair snapped on their arrival in Los Angeles.

CEDARVILLE COLLEGE PLANS TO ENTERTAIN CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Nationally known speakers will appear on the program being arranged for the conference for Christian Workers which will be held from Wednesday, June 12 to Sunday, June 15 under the auspices of Cedarville College.

Arrangements for the conference are in charge of Dr. W. R. McCleskey, president of Cedarville College, and Prof. James H. Dickson, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Included on the list of speakers and leaders of national repute who will have places on the program are Dr. John McNaughton, president of the United Presbyterian Theological Seminary, Pittsburgh; Dr. J. Gresham Machen, Princeton Seminary; Dr. A. Gordon MacLennan of Pittsburgh; Dr. J. Alvin Orr, formerly of Cedarville, and others of equal prominence.

Governor Myers V. Cooper is expected to address a popular open air meeting on the college campus on the closing afternoon of the conference. In the forenoon of that day conference speakers will probably occupy the pulpits of the Cedarville churches and in the evening there will be a closing rally in the college gymnasium auditorium.

Local committees are outlining plans for the affair.

Family tickets, for the entire conference, at a dollar each, will be distributed throughout this section of the state and Cedarville citizens are being requested to co-operate to make the event a success.

Those in charge of arrangements are hoping that many homes in the village will be opened to assist in caring for out-of-town visitors. Many persons from distant points are also expected to attend the conference in view of the national prominence of the participants.

Interest in the conference is being promoted by the Rev. A. C. McConnell, of Pittsburgh.

PAIR HELD TO GRAND JURY; YOUNG NOOKS FACES NEW CHARGE

Pleading not guilty to charges of assault and battery and resisting an officer, Martin Nooks, 40, colored, and his son, John Kenneth, 30, colored, were bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond each by R. O. Copey, justice of the peace, Thursday afternoon.

The charges were filed by Hayes A. McLean, marshal of Cedarville, as a result of an alleged attack made upon him by the pair Wednesday morning after the marshal had arrested the father and son on suspicion of having stolen fifty pounds of wool.

Confession that he had stolen the twelve fleeces of wool Tuesday night from Frank Pistick, farmer, living three miles west of Yellow Springs, was made to Sheriff Ohmer Tate by John Nooks Thursday.

Pistick who was unaware of the theft of the wool until he was advised of the confession went to Cedarville and identified the fleeces Thursday afternoon.

Martin Nooks and another son, Robert, are scheduled to go on trial in Common Pleas Court a second time May 16 on larceny charges in connection with the theft of a hog from Fred Williamson, Jamestown Pike. The court granted a retrial in the case.

Robert Nooks was fined $25 and costs Thursday afternoon by Probate Judge S. C. Wright and committed to the County Jail for driving an auto having a wrong license tag.

In view of the confession of John Nooks, Sheriff Tate said that a charge of burglary and larceny will also probably be filed against him by Pistick.

MUSIC CLUB PLANS BENEFIT MOVIE TO BUY SCHOOL RADIOS

Radio instruments will be installed in Xenia public schools if a benefit movie at the Bijou Theater next Wednesday, sponsored by the Xenia Woman's Music Club, is given sufficient patronage.

With proceeds derived from the show, the club hopes to be able to finance installations in all the public schools and Parent-Teacher Associations and school children are co-operating with them in this program.

The feature picture will be "Making the Grade", from a comedy by George Ade, featuring Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran. In addition the club has arranged to show a one-reel picture of "Life of Franz Schubert", whose anniversary was celebrated last winter.

There will be a matinee at 2:30 and shows at night at 7 o'clock and at 8:30.

Tickets are being sold at twenty-five cents for adults and fifteen cents for children. The tickets are now being sold by public school children and by members of the Xenia Woman's Music Club. Mrs. James Wilson III is chairman of the committee in charge which is also composed of Mrs. C. H. Little, who is in charge of the ticket sale and Miss Juanita Rankin.

The plan of installing radios in the school was conceived by Mrs. Lawrence Shields, president of the Xenia Women's Music Club, and it is being emphasized as an important club project. Members believe the radios can be used frequently for supplementary education.

PITTSBURGH DROPS FACULTY MEMBER

PITTSBURGH, May 3.—The use of the name of the University of Pittsburgh by organizations and individuals inside and outside of Pittsburgh to advance their propaganda and publicity was given as the reason for the expulsion of one faculty member and two students yesterday and the recent outlawing of the student liberal club, in a statement issued by John C. Bowman, chancellor of the university. The men expelled were Frederick Woltman, a philosophy instructor; William Albertson, president of the liberals, and Arthur McDowell, a member of the organization.

The order banishing them from the school climaxed two weeks of dissension between university authorities and the liberal club. Friction first arose when the club was prohibited from using university buildings for a meeting which was to have been addressed by Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes, noted sociologist advocating the release of Mooney and Billings.

NASH '400'

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

$1025

Delivered,
Fully Equipped,
Nothing More
to Buy!

Compare
delivered, fully-equipped prices
See why Nash is lower!

ON the basis of quality, the Nash "400" should cost more than other cars in its competitive field. It actually costs less!

Nash engineers—one of the industry's outstanding engineering organizations—have created a finer motor car. They have developed the high-compression, 7-bearing motor to its highest point of perfection and power. The exclusive Nash outboard mounting of hydraulic shock absorbers doubles their effectiveness and creates supreme riding ease. And here is the "world's easiest driving control," in this new and finer motor car.

These are but a few of many "400" features of superiority.

Why then, is the Nash "400" lower priced?

Here is the explanation. Every Nash "400" is now factory-equipped with the accessories, purchased at factory savings and included in the factory price of the car. Bumpers, shock absorbers, spare tire lock and tire cover come with the car and are not added later as "extras," at retail prices.

You will find some dealers (not Nash dealers) charging as much as $50 or $60 extra for bumpers alone.

Compare the delivered, fully equipped price of any Nash "400" with the delivered, fully equipped prices of competitive cars. You'll see the saving!

AFFIDAVIT AGAINST DRY AGENT DROPPED; PROBE CONTINUES

whatever was done "was done with authorization and in compliance with measures necessary to entrapment."

While the order suspending Cole was en route to Elyria, he came under fire in Lorain after a party of dry agents and deputies raided the home of the Rev. John I. Cooper, pastor of the Union Rescue Mission there.

The minister sent an emphatic protest to the governor who in turn demanded a thorough investigation.

Cole, after the raid, said the pastor's house was raided by mistake and he added that he resumed raiding in the Lorain area because he had not been officially notified of his suspension.

Meantime, Prosecutor Cunningham made a flying trip from Lancaster to Logan to interview Miss Crystal Geiz who, the prosecutor claims, attended parties with Cole and Little while they were working as undercover agents in Lancaster last February.

Thus far Cunningham has questioned five girls, including Mary and Helen Conrad, Blanche Cavanaugh, Katherine Gunion and Carrie Wilson.

Myron Conrad, interviewed at her rooming house last night, gave this story of the alleged passing of wine by Little in her sister's presence:

"I had met Mr. Little and another fellow whom I did not know, but whom I believe was a dry agent, in the room of Miss Geiz, who at that time stayed in our rooming house."

"Crystal came to me and asked me to come to her room, saying she wanted me to meet some wonderful fellows."

"I went in her room and met Little and the other fellow. They were drinking liquor."

"I saw Little once or twice after that downtown, but never made dates with him. He would call me and ask me to come on parties with him, but I never accepted."

"Mr. Little asked me while I was in Crystal's room as to whether I drank liquor, but I said I didn't. I told him I drank wine sometimes."

"He said he would bring me some."

"He came on the afternoon of Feb. 16 when my sister, who came to visit me for the week-end, was in the room."

"Blanche Cavanaugh, who had met him, saw him coming, and she hid behind the door."

"Tell him I'm not here," she told me.

"When Little, whom I then knew as Allen, came to the door he said: 'I've brought you a little gift.' He pulled a bottle of wine from under his coat and handed it to me."

"Is it good?" I asked him.

"Yes it's good," he told me. "Taste it and pass it around."

"He saw Helen sitting on the bed of course, but he didn't know Blanche was in the room."

"He asked me if I had seen Blanche lately and I said no. Then he left."

"When he went I took a drink. Helen took some too, but I didn't offer it to her."

"I thought my father ought to know about it, so I told him about it."

"Lakes and snowstorms which damaged crops in several states held the central states in the grip of unseasonable weather today."

In the wake of tornadoes and hail storms which swept five southwest states Wednesday and Thursday, the Great Lakes states were blanketed with snow carried on the driving winds from the north and east.

In Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, rail traffic and communications were crippled. Lake traffic was demoralized by the tossing waves of Lake Michigan, which were believed to have engulfed two men in an airplane which was seen to fall into the lake during the storm.

Central Illinois reported the heaviest snowfall ever recorded in the month of May. Unofficial estimates stated that from four to six inches of snow fell in that area. Thousands of fruit trees were in bloom and it was believed that much of the crop would be lost.

Hail, snow and rain prevailed in Indiana. At Valparaiso rescue workers were clearing wreckage caused by cyclonic winds which demolished houses and uprooted trees. Many small towns were completely isolated when rail and communication lines collapsed.

In northern Indiana school was discontinued until work of reconstruction school structures, weakened by strong gales, could be accomplished.

At Chicago high winds sent huge waves from Lake Michigan against the sea walls, flooding streets and basements. Scores of crews worked to protect buildings, drives and car tracks.

Abnormally high lake level was reported by engineers and government records placed it as the highest since 1918. It showed 2.86 feet above normal.

Coast guard crews reported weakened sea walls at several points in the Chicago area. Sandbags were being used at danger points.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3.—A young boy was killed, at least four persons were injured and damage estimated at more than $125,000 was caused by storms which swept sections of Kentucky yesterday, a survey today revealed.

Frank Carver, 16, son of a farmer living near Slaughter in Webster County, was killed when he was struck by a lightning bolt. The bolt also killed two horses the boy was driving.

Four persons were injured in Pulaski County when a mild cyclone struck the neighborhood of Elihu, four miles southeast of Somerset. Hundreds of trees and poles were uprooted.

Two homes at Princeton were struck by lightning, and numerous trees were blown down and windows smashed at Mayfield.

Communications in many areas were still down today.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Rockville, Md., police today reported a single gust of wind swooped down to death at Laytonville, Md., demolished the home of Bowie Childs, killing Childs' mother and 18-year-old daughter. Four others in the house were seriously injured.

The fatalities were aftermaths of a wind storm that struck west central Maryland, and the District of Columbia last night. Two persons were injured here during the storm when they came in contact with a charged wire blown down by the winds.

TWO PRISONERS DIE AS TORNADO WRECKS JAIL IN COLUMBUS

were hurled down upon the prisoners. Relief agencies were quickly summoned and within a half hour after the storm the dead and injured had been removed.

Several prisoners, escaping unhurt, took advantage of the storm to flee.

Along Lake Erie the wind whipped the water into a fury, and caused considerable property damage. More damage reports were anticipated today as the heavy waves continued to beat the shore.

Coast guards at the Cleveland station spent the night trying to protect their craft. Waves described as being twenty feet high were sweeping over the other and inner breakwaters and beating against the guard station. Great difficulty was experienced in holding one of the boats that was in dry-dock for repairs.

All air traffic was halted by the storm conditions. The U. S. Weather Bureau at the Cleveland Airport reported a northwest wind with a velocity of forty miles an hour, and a near freezing temperature. At 6 p. m. the mercury stood at 53 but by 2 p. m. it had dropped to 35, with two degrees of freezing. An upward trend was reported after that.

At different times during the night slight snows fell in both north and central Ohio and the low temperatures threatened all May records for cold weather.

Damage caused by the wind-driven lake waters in the Sandusky area will mount into the thousands, it was reported.

Whole sections of the Cedar Point auto roadway connecting the summer resort with the mainland, will have to be rebuilt.

Lake shore docks have been torn away, roadways undermined and summer homes damaged. A heavy concrete retaining wall built by City Commissioner George J. Schade of Sandusky to protect his Rye beach water front was torn to pieces by the waves.

One man was injured in Toledo during a heavy rain and wind storm and a family of four were rescued when water threatened to submerge their home.

More than 100 homes in Point Place were reported isolated.

The Dayton area reported snow, sleet and rain and high winds.

In southeastern Ohio torrential rains fell and considerable damage was done in the area surrounding Marietta on the Ohio River.

The power plant was reported unroofed by the wind and tributaries of the Ohio were running bank full.

Near freezing temperatures prevailed generally. The Postal Telegraph Company at Columbus reported fifteen miles of telegraph poles down in various sections.

In the wake of tornadoes and hail storms which swept five southwest states Wednesday and Thursday, the Great Lakes states were blanketed with snow carried on the driving winds from the north and east.

In Missouri, Illinois and Indiana, rail traffic and communications were crippled. Lake traffic was demoralized by the tossing waves of Lake Michigan, which were believed to have engulfed two men in an airplane which was seen to fall into the lake during the storm.

Central Illinois reported the heaviest snowfall ever recorded in the month of May. Unofficial estimates stated that from four to six inches of snow fell in that area. Thousands of fruit trees were in bloom and it was believed that much of the crop would be lost.

Hail, snow and rain prevailed in Indiana. At Valparaiso rescue workers were clearing wreckage caused by cyclonic winds which demolished houses and uprooted trees. Many small towns were completely isolated when rail and communication lines collapsed.

In northern Indiana a school was discontinued until work of reconditioning school structures, weakened by strong gales, could be accomplished.

At Chicago high winds sent huge waves from Lake Michigan against the sea walls, flooding streets and basements. Scores of crews worked to protect buildings, drives and car tracks.

Abnormally high lake level was reported by engineers and government records placed it as the highest since 1918. It showed 2.86 feet above normal.

Coast guard crews reported weakened sea walls at several points in the Chicago area. Sandbags were being used at danger points.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 3.—A young boy was killed, at least four persons were injured and damage estimated at more than $125,000 was caused by storms which swept sections of Kentucky yesterday, a survey today revealed.

Frank Carver, 16, son of a farmer living near Slaughter in Webster County, was killed when he was struck by a lightning bolt. The bolt also killed two horses the boy was driving.

Four persons were injured in Pulaski County when a mild cyclone struck the neighborhood of Elihu, four miles southeast of Somerset. Hundreds of trees and poles were uprooted.

Two homes at Princeton were struck by lightning, and numerous trees were blown down and windows smashed at Mayfield.

Communications in many areas were still down today.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Rockville, Md., police today reported a single gust of wind swept down to death at Laytonsville, Md., demolished the home of Bowie Childs, killing Childs' mother and 18-year-old daughter. Four others in the house were seriously injured.

The fatalities were aftermaths of a wind storm that struck west central Maryland, and the District of Columbia last night. Two persons were injured here during the storm when they came in contact with a charged wire blown down by the winds.

Whole sections of the Cedar Point auto roadway connecting the were hurled down upon the prisoners. Relief agencies were quickly summoned and within a half hour after the storm the dead and injured had been removed.

Several prisoners, escaping unhurt, took advantage of the storm to flee.

Along Lake Erie the wind whipped the water into a fury, and caused considerable property damage. More damage reports were anticipated today as the heavy waves continued to beat the shore.

Coast guards at the Cleveland station spent the night trying to protect their craft. Waves described as being twenty feet high were sweeping over the other and inner breakwaters and beating against the guard station. Great difficulty was experienced in holding one of the boats that was in dry-dock for repairs.

All air traffic was halted by the storm conditions. The U. S. Weather Bureau at the Cleveland Airport reported a northwest wind with a velocity of forty miles an hour, and a near freezing temperature. At 6 p. m. the mercury stood at 53 but by 2 p. m. it had dropped to 35, with two degrees of freezing. An upward trend was reported after that.

At different times during the night slight snows fell in both north and central Ohio and the low temperatures threatened all May records for cold weather.

Damage caused by the wind-driven lake waters in the Sandusky area will amount into the thousands, it was reported.

Whole sections of the Cedar Point auto roadway connecting the summer resort with the mainland, will have to be rebuilt.

Lake shore docks have been torn away, roadways undermined and summer homes damaged. A heavy concrete retaining wall built by City Commissioner George J. Schade of Sandusky to protect his Rye beach water front was torn to pieces by the waves.

One man was injured in Toledo during a heavy rain and wind storm and a family of four were rescued when water threatened to submerge their home.

More than 100 homes in Point Place were reported isolated.

The Dayton area reported snow, sleet and rain and high winds.

In southeastern Ohio torrential rains fell and considerable damage was done in the area surrounding dam No. 17, six miles above Marietta on the Ohio River.

The power plant was reported unroofed by the wind and tributaries of the Ohio were running bank full.

Near freezing temperatures prevailed generally.

The Postal Telegraph Company at Columbus reported fifteen miles of telegraph poles down in various sections.

For many years Lionel Barrymore, least prominent of that famous family of stage and screen luminaries, labored unsung in minor cinema parts, only now to come into his own as one of the leaders of the new talkie aristocracy in Hollywood.

Barrymore, a mediocre film leading man, is just about the best talkie director yet uncovered. That is one reason why the new talkie "Madame X", made from the pre-war stage tear-jerker, is rated a success.

Under Barrymore the 1910 model stage drama is presented in brisk, episodic style. The story, though rambling all over the world, moves rapidly to its climax which is the finest bit of the piece.

Barrymore is really a remarkable fellow. From playing villains in impossible serials way back in Tolstoi's "Redemption" in which Barrymore appeared on Broadway and Gilbert has just made for the talkies. He found each interpretation entirely different and individual. He revealed that Barrymore rehearses his lines and gestures dozens of times while Gilbert rehearses talking sequences seldom twice alike and improves much of his action during the actual filming.

A real airship, one that can be guided in the air as readily as an automobile on land, will be on exhibition as the feature attraction at the Greene County Fair in August.

The Dayton and Xenia Traction Co., which went into the hands of a receiver three years ago, will be sold in Dayton on foreclosure proceedings this week. The upset price is $400,000.

Dr. Wilbur Zell, who recently graduated from the veterinary department of the University of Toronto, Toronto, Canada, has arranged to open an office in Jamestown.

LIONEL BARRYMORE

1915 he moved from small part to small part, always giving an honest performance but remaining rather obscure. Lionel remained in the background while Brother John basked for years in the limelight playing penitent, Russian noblemen and crippled sailors. The rise of the talkies, however, gave Lionel his chance and he bids fair to become THE Barrymore.

Ruth Chatterton the stage star, is said to be splendid in the role of "Madame X". She makes a highly improbable role somehow ring true and Lewis Stone is fine as Floriot, her puritanical husband. The story is of an erling though beautiful woman, cast from her home for her sins, who becomes a drab, the plaything of uncouth brutes. That might have been possible back in 1910. Nowadays she would receive a fortune for her signed confession in the tabloids and marriage to a multi-millionaire.

And speaking of the Barrymores, it is pertinent that Fred Niblo, the director, has come out to deny the report that John is temperamental and he says similar things about John Gilbert. What some interpret as temperamental, Niblo calls "nervous energy." "They give every ounce of nervous energy to each scene and naturally are anxious to rehearse and record their efforts," he says.

Both, Niblo said, have artistic intensity. He compared their work in
